

October 10, 2025: On the Use of Rap and Hip Hop to Express Personal Values

As a DJ - a real DJ, unlike the fake acoustic bombardment DJ's that are lording themselves over our home for the past several years,

I often listen to the lyrics of rap music or hip hop music in a spirit that is directly contrary to my own moral values. Sometimes I play this music very loudly, dance to it, and nod my head in what can be perceived as approval.

Unfortunately, I am witnessing that these agitation forces are embodying the ideals of these rap songs and lyrics in a way that suggests to us that they are 'right' and 'proud' of this type of lifestyle in their own life.

I am witnessing that these agitation forces are attempting to use Rap music as a means of suggesting that they, or I, agree with concepts such as Cash Rules Everything Around Me, and Get the Money, or other gangster ways of life that I am not approving for the way of finding a common moral ground.

I want to be very clear to the world: I would never vote for Birdman, Lil Wayne, 50 Cent, Ice Cube, Wu Tang Clan, or any other rapper or hip hop artists to run the country of the United States of America or the world - not even Del the Funky Homosapien.

We listen to music to engage in a spirit of fun, fantasy, or over-extension from our normal life. This does not mean that we should be extending ourselves to the ways of life that are portrayed in the music that is presented to us as fun, gangster, or 'authentic' to the people.

If you are finding your moral values in Rap music, hip hop lyrics, or any piece of popular culture, then I am suggesting that you are extremely deficient in knowledge of moral values and the sources by which those values can be gained.

First, and foremost, please do not receive your moral guidance from Rap culture.

Second, please stop presenting Rap music to me as the ways in which our government of 'gangsters' is best running in our modern world.

I am very clearly seeing that the United States government has modeled itself to become the worst 'gangsters' on the planet with the biggest 'guns' around. I am very clearly witnessing that the American military is stealing their valor and are in no way honorable protectors of our community. I am laughing at the fact that a Team of 200 USA soldiers will be 'ensuring the safe return' of hostages from Israel and Palestine.

American Militurds: Your team is responsible for both taking the hostages in the first place, and destroying the lives of the innocent people surrounding your own hostage-taking mission. And now you present yourselves as being responsible for 'securing the safety' of their return? Give me a break.

Your team is playing both sides of every conflict that we see in order to steal dollars from people and countries around the world. I have no respect for you or your sacred 'values' - nor do I have any respect left for any of the fake bravado, heroism, or moral high ground that you camouflage yourselves in to disguise your actions. YOU AND YOUR LEADERS MADE ALL OF THESE FACTS VERY CLEAR TO ME OVER THE PAST THREE YEARS AS WE ENDURED YOUR EVIL OVER-LORDING AND SATANIC PRESENCE!

I am presenting to the public that Elon Musk and Donald Trump are exhibiting to me that they embody a spirit of Rap music and hip hop culture as gangsters that are attempting to present themselves as legitimate leaders of a legal government of, by, and for the People.

Accordingly, as I strongly oppose the adoption of Rap music as guidance for one's personal moral values, I also strongly oppose the adoption of Rap music as guidance for the moral values of the community as a whole.

I am a really great DJ that knows the spirit of exactly what people want to hear at any given moment - but I will never endorse those lyrics as the spirit by which those same people should live their lives.

Please learn the difference between fantasy and reality - especially if you are one of the people that are tasked with the creation of our modern reality on a daily basis.

Thank you,

Chris Carlin
